OUT ON THE LIMB with George Vierhus

THERE ARE STILL echoes of the great Campbell Little League accomplishment bouncing around. Almost every day something pops up that is worthy of noting.

A letter this week, for example, was received from John J. Linnane, Jr. of Ashville, N. Carolina.

The letter reports:..."While watching the ABC television program "Wide World of Sports"...the names of Kevin and Kelly Linnane appeared on the screen,.....

"The name 'Linnane' is a relatively uncommon one,"...

The writer wanted to determine whether they happened to be related. He asked us to help him make the proper contact in Campbell.

He adds as a clincher: "We, too, happen to have an 11 year old son named Kevin Linnane."

We thought that was a terrific coincidence and have passed on the letter to the mother of the all-star twins, Kevin and Kelly Linnane, who, incidentally, celebrated their 13th birthday on Sept. 5, the date of the community dinner honoring our almost-world champions.

That's one birthday, we betcha, the twins will always remember.

THIS WEEK WE ALSO received about 16 different copies of "Wayne Today", the tabloid daily newspaper, that is published in the city of the world champions, Wayne, New Jersey, the team that defeated Campbell 2-0 for the world title.

The 16 issues, beginning with Aug. 4, recorded the exploits of the Wayne team, starting with the district playoff. The last issue (Sept.3) reported the welcome home celebration that was given the world champs.

It is interesting to review the Wayne newspapers, for Wayne's record over the long, long tournament trail almost paralleled Campbell's.

FROM OPPOSITE SIDES of the continent, the two teams were on a collision course from the beginning that exploded in Williamsport.

From the time Wayne defeated Pennsylvania 3-2 to win the eastern regional title, the news stories of the Little League exploits took the top spot on each front page with banner headlines and pictures.

And, of course, the banner headline on the Sunday, Aug. 30, edition fairly screamed: "WAYNE WINS WORLD TITLE".

That issue, incidentially, was almost entirely devoted to the Little League with business firms placing congratulatory ads (a la Campbell) throughout the paper.

We learned, however, through one of the news stories in a previous issue of "Wayne Today" that the homecoming celebration (and edition) apparently had been planned for quite some time, just after the Wayne kids had won the state title. (Confidence?)

The final edition of the series we received (Sept. 3) was almost all devoted to the homecoming celebration again with a front page banner: "WAYNE WORLD CHAMPIONS RECEIVE HOME TOWN CHEER".

The front page and many of the inside pages were filled with pictures (Doesn't that sound familiar?) of the Little Leaguers and their supporters, including a U.S. Senator, a congressman, and numerous state legislators and, of course, the mayor and councilmen.

Wayne may have had a bigger parade and celebration than Campbell had.

But we don't think they outdid this community in enthusiasm or support.

State takes first step on Campbell interchange

What could be the first in a long series of legal and engineering procedures affecting the proposed interchange at Campbell Ave. and Highway 17 was taken this week by the Division of Highways.

In an advertisement that appears on page 2 of this issue, the Division of Highways gives "notice of opportunity for public hearing" on the interchange proposal located on a map that is part of the "ad".

The notice states that the proposed improvements were requested by the City of Campbell and will provide a new full interchange at Campbell Ave.

It also notes that the proposal will be financed by Federal and State funds and that additional rights-of-way will be required. (The City of Campbell's part in the project.)

The Division of Highways in the notice indicates that a public hearing will be conducted to provide interested persons an opportunity to present their views and to discuss the engineering design features of the proposed project.

FIRST TIME IN CAMPELL'S HISTORY

New city policy requires planners to live in city

A long-standing city policy that has been in effect almost since the city was formed in 1952 went by the boards on Monday night when the City Council by a 4-1 vote ruled that in the future planning commissioners must be residents of the city.

However, no limit was placed on length of service.

But the councilmen indicated that should the new policy not attract enough qualified applicants the next time there was an opening on the Planning Commission, they would consider reverting to the original policy.

Under the Council policy that was modified on Monday night, planning commissioners did not have to reside within the city limits, although city residence is required for members of the Parks and Recreation Commission and Youth Advisory Commission and, of course, the City Council.

Councilman Bill Smeed pointed out that the non-resident clause was effective in the early days of cityhood because help was needed from qualified people during those fledgling days. However, Smeed emphasized that the city now with 24,000 people should be able to enlist qualified personnel as commissioners.

Smeed also emphasized that it was inconsistent, in his opinion, to require the commissioners on the other advisory bodies to reside within the city limits but allow planning commissioners to live outside.

Mayor Dean Chamberlin, who cast the lone vote against changing the policy, maintained that there was a fundamental difference between the functions of the planning commission and the other commissions.

He emphasized that the Planning Commission was more of an extension of the council's legislative authority than the others.

Councilman Bill Podgorsek, who had initiated the policy change question, reiterated that his reason for bringing up the matter was that he was certain that in a city of 24,000 the city could find qualified personnel to serve on the advisory bodies.

Mayor Chamberlin maintained, however, that it could be helpful to the city at times to have qualified planning commissioners from the city's "sphere of influence" but agreed that he would choose a city resident, if two ap-

RESIDENTS SHOW DISPLEASURE

Council delays hearing on Whiteoaks closing

A large delegation of residents on White Oaks Road vociferously showed their disapproval on Monday night of a City Council action which by a 4-1 vote deferred the scheduling of a public hearing on the closing of White Oaks Road by two cul-de-sacs.

The Council action came after Bill Wren, public works director, had reviewed the background of the problem and had recommended that the cul-de-sacs, which had been specified in the master plan, be constructed as soon as possible.

He maintained that the traffic flow on the street would increase with the completion of the interchange on Highway 17 at Camden and that the installation of a traffic signal at White Oaks and Camden would encourage the use of White Oaks as a shortcut by commuting traffic instead of using the major thoroughfares of Bascom and Camden.

He recommended that the first reading of the ordinance of intention to "vacate" the street be given and a public hearing be set for Oct. 13.

The Council Chambers were packed with interested residents from the White Oaks area who have long indicated by petitions and by oral statements, the desire to have the street closed.

Mayor Dean Chamberlin emphasized that it was not a public hearing that was being conducted and that discussion

NOW ZONED FOR SINGLE-FAMILY DWELLINGS

4-plex project may go on Amato tract in Campbell

One of Campbell's few remaining undeveloped areas suitable for single-family dwelling units is being eyed for an ambitious four-plex development, members of the Planning Commission learned at their last meeting.

A proposal that would transform the 31-acre Amato property on Campbell Ave. west of San Tomas Expressway into a four-plex condominium consisting of 116 buildings (464 living units) was submitted to the Planning Commission at the Sept. 8 meeting under a zone change application.

The public hearing, however, on the zone change application from R-1 (single family) to P-D (planned development) was continued until the Oct. 5 meeting to allow the staff to obtain more information on the traffic circulation pattern and other pertinent points affecting the situation.

Present at the last meeting were a number of residents from Hedegard, and the Sondra-Branbury sector who indicated their concern in any zone change that would allow multiples in the area.

The zone change application has been submitted by members of the Amato family and the Charles W. Davidson Co., consulting engineers.

The applicants maintain that the condominium for the four-plex project would be in agreement with the city's general plan as far as overall density of the property is concerned.

They point out that the general plan would place high density apartments next to the expressway (about 6 1/2-acres) with medium density next to it (8 1/2-acres) and with low density on the balance (15-acres). They submit that their proposal would spread the density evenly over the entire property.

The two bedroom units would be constructed by McKeon Construction which caters basically to an adult market, they also maintain.

The McKeon Construction company is also involved in another matter before the Planning Commission, according to Art Kee, planning director.

Continued from the last meeting until Sept. 21 was the application for a tentative subdivision map of the former Gomes Ranch property on E. Hamilton Ave.

The new owners of the property (Valley Title and McKeon Co.) want approval of 89-lots of 8000 square feet each on which they wish to build four-plexes. The former owners of the property had gained approval for a large apartment complex on the parcel but their time limit on the approval had expired.

The Commission continued until the Sept. 21 meeting two other applications affecting the commercial part of the same property in order to resolve the alignment problem of extension of Third St.

The Commission approved: Industrial building plans for Jack Craig at 1050 Florence Way; phases 5 and 6 for the PruneYard Center submitted by Fred Sahadi; and a mansard roof for a building at 33 N. First for Bob Ferguson.

Continued until Sept. 21 was the application for approval of revised plans for a Colonel Sanders restaurant at Winchester and Latimer submitted by the Harman Management Investment Co.

Continuation of one year was granted Bogdanich Building Co., for a 198-unit apartment complex at 629 Hacienda.

New Prune Yard BofA branch opens

GALA OPENING--The PruneYard branch of the Bank of America in Campbell opened for business on Monday of this week, replacing the Hamilton Plaza branch.

Last Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. more than 300 people thronged the lobby of the new branch at open house ceremonies.

Civic and bank officials took part in the dedicatory program of the attractive new building with its early California styling in keeping with the motif of the other buildings in the PruneYard center.

In the top photo on the right, Fabbri pays respects to Oscar Sorenson, former manager of the Hamilton Plaza branch for eight years and who is now retired after 43 years of service with the bank. Sorenson received a medallion from the bank and also an award from the Campbell Chamber of Commerce, presented by Bob Bullard, CofC president (lower right photo).

In the middle photo on the left, Bullard welcomes the bank on behalf of the CofC and on the right Mayor Dean Chamberlin extends the city's greetings.

'Colonel' submits modified plans

Modified plans for a Colonel Sanders chicken restaurant to be located at Winchester and Latimer are scheduled to be up for approval of the Planning Commission next Monday, Sept. 21.

When the plans were originally presented some months ago, the Commission frowned on the stereotyped "Colonel Sanders" design that was submitted and suggested that the plans should be changed to correspond to one of the franchised restaurants in Santa Clara which would be more compatible to the surrounding area.

So it will be the modified plans that will be before the Commission next Monday.

The new owners of the former Gomes Ranch property (between Latimer and Hamilton) are scheduled to submit plans for the development of the property as a four-plex project on the 89 lots. The Commission also will be asked on Monday to approve plans for the service station that is to be built on the same property.

Enrollments meet prior estimates

A survey of local schools reveal that most enrollments this fall have come close to administrative predictions.

Neal Royer, superintendent of Campbell Union School District reports a few minor kindergarten shifts have been made to keep classes at the 31-pupil size which the district has established as an average.

But the predicted enrollment of 11,100 is expected to be nearly 100% accurate.

St. Lucy's School is nearly full at 300, reports Sister Michela Sheehan, principal.

Seventh - Day Adventist School reports enrollment up slightly, at 159.

In the high school district, current attendance stands at nearly 14,000 and late arrivals should make the figures equal the projected 14,300.

Editorial

Bridging the gap

It should be fairly obvious to all concerned that whenever a legislative body makes a decision on a controversial issue, those who had favored a different decision than what was taken will resent the action.

An issue would not be controversial, if there weren't pros and cons involved.

And the stronger the cases of the pros and cons, the more difficult it becomes to make a decision that will not be resented by the "opposition".

In most instances, when a legislative action is finally taken, provided adequate discussion and investigation has preceded the action, the opposition will bow to the majority rule of the legislative body, although generally "vowing" to make some changes at the next election.

However, in some cases, members of the "opposition" camp become so emotionally involved with their side of the issue and so certain that the particular decision that was made affecting the controversial issue was wrong that they are not content to let it go unchallenged.

So, they take steps to challenge the legislative action.

Over-simplified, that is somewhat the situation that exists in the City of Campbell today as a result of a zoning action taken by the City Council which has created bitter opposition among some segments of the city's population.

Those opposed to the City Council's decision have challenged the Council action and have submitted petitions of protest. The petitions contain more than enough signatures of registered voters to force the Council to either repeal the offending zoning ordinance or refer it to the people at a special election.

From all indications it appears that a special election will be called and the City of Campbell is to have its first referendum election in its history.

We find no fault with the principle involved in referring the question to the people of whether a drive-in theater in town, that is now operating with two screens, should be allowed to put a third screen on undeveloped property which the theater owns adjacent to its present operation.

We say that we are not opposed to the principle involved.

But (and we know this will provoke vigorous criticism from those "who have taken the issue to the people"), somehow the third-screen issue seems so prosaic in comparison with many of the more major problems that exist today.

We hastily add that those who are directly involved do not consider the issue minor.

Our point is that the problem of the third-screen is, in reality, basically confined to a rather small portion of the community so it seems to us that it will be difficult for those who reside in other areas of the city to become aroused to any great extent over the referendum vote.

That, we think, is too bad.

In our opinion, if an issue is to be referred to the people via a referendum vote, it should be of such significance that residents in all sections of the city would be vitally and directly interested in the outcome.

It is not the question of the expense of the election that concerns us.

The $5000 tab that the city must pick up for the cost of the special election is a worthwhile expenditure, in our opinion, if the issue warrants an election, which we question is the case of the third screen.

Except for perhaps 12 years ago when the city adopted the CM (controlled manufacturing) zoning for a portion of the industrial area in Campbell, no other zoning matter in this city's history has caused the friction that has developed in the case-of-the-third screen.

The drive-in theater issue is a situation that the City of Campbell "inherited" and, in our opinion, the city councilmen, in making their decision, were sincere and and honest in their attempt to resolve a problem that had been researched and studied and explored for months.

Unfortunately, the action taken by the City Council did not meet with the approval of some members of the Planning Commission who proceeded to take the lead in challenging the action thus presenting, in our opinion, a public image of intra-city bickering that is detrimental to the city's best interest.

We reiterate that we do not object to the principle of referring issues to the people for their approval or disapproval, although we feel that such issues should be of community-wide import.

We do question the propriety of city planning commissioners taking the lead in challenging the authority of the city council, which had appointed them as planning commissioners in the first place.

However, despite the bad feelings that may have developed because of this third-screen issue, we sincerely hope for the benefit of the city as a whole that all parties concerned will attempt to bridge the gap that has been created before it gets any wider.

THE PRESS HAD SENT a number of papers to Wayne which described Campbell's march to Williamsport, so probably the "Wayne Today" sports editor is having as much fun as we have had in comparing notes.

Unfortunately, we weren't able to put the same notation on the envelope that the Wayne guy did:

"We're No. 1, Wayne, New Jersey."

But then again, you can't win 'em all.

"FISH ON!"...LAST WEEK for the first time ever we heard that expression.

We went on our first deep sea fishing excursion for salmon in the San Francisco Bay.

It was noted as a very successful expedition. Our boat managed to get its limit by 2 p.m., after about eight hours on the water.

It was our first effort in search of salmon. We must admit we enjoyed the experience.

It was quite a thrill to see your line start jerking after a salmon had nabbed the hook and the yell goes up, "FISH ON".

Then you begin reeling and reeling for real.

WE DIDN'T HANDLE the rod and reel with too much finess, as you can well imagine.

But we did manage to get our share of our finny friends with some help, of course, from the "pros" aboard.

Much of the success of our first trip (beginner's luck) must be attributed to our "coach", Supervisor Ralph Mehrkens, who directed us in the intricacies of putting on the bait and weight and getting the line into the water without following it personnally.

But even with Ralph's expert coaching, when that first fish hit our line, we still almost lost our cool.

We were drinking coffee at the time from our thermos bottle top.

Our thermos bottle now is minus a top.

We tossed it overboard and grabbed the reel.

We only meant to throw out the coffee.

But we did get the fish.

"COACH" MEHRKENS was the champ aboard.

In fact his catch was so noteworthy that Frank Freeman in his "Here 'Tis" column in the San Jose Merc had this to say about it:

"Supervisor Ralph Mehrkens had the old pioneer spirit on Admission Day. Went fishin' to stock the family larder with a vengeance. He caught, from a fishing boat off S.F., a 50-lb. king salmon. Not only that, but the second largest of that boat's catch; one scaling 25 lbs. Then he went plumb wild and caught a third, 15 lbs...."

Now, we don't know exactly which one of the group aboard that particular boat gave Freeman his information.

No one will dispute the fact that Ralph got the largest fish. It was a beauty and a whopper.

But City Manager Bob Stephens just might question giving Ralph credit for the "second largest".

Bob hooked one that just might have nosed out Ralph's 25-pounder. But that's between Bob and Ralph...You might call it city-county jurisdictional confrontation.

Fortunately for us, the major league salmon must have recognized that we were a novice at the sport. They left us alone. Which was just as well.

This lightweight had enough trouble landing the lighter ones that gave our hook a tumble.

IT WAS A PLEASANT and enjoyable excursion, as we said. It was, that is, when we discovered after quite a few hours that we were actually awake.

But we doubt that we will ever be proficient at the sport.

Getting up at 3 a.m., in order to be swinging and swaying on the water when the salmon are, supposedly, biting their best, will not, we submit, become a regular occurrence for us.

It's for the birds.

Or for the fish, we should say.

Council to act on city's first referendum petition on Sept 28

City Clerk Dorothy Trevethan on Monday night officially submitted to the City Council the first referendum petition in this city's history that contained enough qualified signatures to force recognition by the Council.

The Council deferred any action on the matter until Sept. 28.

The petition, demanding the Council to repeal a zoning ordinance or call an election, had signatures of 1217 qualified registered voters whereas only 909 (or 10% of the total registered) were required.

The offending zoning ordinance affects the zone change approved for the Winchester Drive-In Theater which will allow a third screen to be installed.

After City Clerk Trevethan had read the preamble to the petition, Mayor Dean Chamberlin explained that City Attorney Joe Bonacina, now on vacation, had requested that the Council take no action until his return at the Sept. 28 meeting. And that was done by a unanimous vote.

In other actions on Monday night, the Council upheld the action of the Planning Commission in denying the application of Guild West to improve a city-owned lot for parking adjacent to an office building at 80 Gilman Ave.

However, the Council overruled the Planning Commission in the appeal of a real estate development firm, "S.H.A.R.E." The Commission had granted the firm an extension of time for development but specified the units for the complex at San Tomas Expressway and Hamilton be reduced from 176 to 139.

The 176-unit job had been approved originally as it met city requirements but new city standards have reduced the density allowed.

However, the councilmen, in granting a 90-day extension, approved the original plan for 176-units.

The Council on Monday gave Bill Wren, public works director, and Art Kee, planning director, approval to draft possible changes in the city ordinance that would reduce the width of city streets but increase off-street parking areas as well as landscaped areas in multi-unit subdivisions.

White Oaks

on the question of setting the hearing would be confined to councilmen.

Councilman Ralph Doetsch led off the discussion, emphasizing that the Council had indicated in the past that no action would be taken on closing White Oaks until a comprehensive traffic survey had been made.

He claimed that no such survey had been undertaken, therefore he thought the matter should be delayed.

Despite Mayor Chamberlin's warning to the crowd, Doetsch's statement was greeted by jeers from the highly-partisan group.

Doetsch, however, plowed ahead and moved that the matter be deferred until the interchange had been completed and a study made. But the motion died for lack of a second.

However, after more discussion with a number of councilmen wondering out loud what harm could be done by waiting for the survey, Doetsch made virtually the same motion as before.

This time Councilman Bill Smeed seconded it. Doetsch and Smeed were joined by Councilman Ed Rogers and Bill Podgorsek in voting for the motion with Mayor Chamberlin casting the negative vote.

The White Oaks crowd then made their exodus from the Council Chambers indicating their displeasure with the Council's action. Many remained on the city hall steps for some time afterward discussing the situation.

plicants had equal qualifications.

Councilman Ed Rogers admitted that, over the years as the issue had come up, he had "blown hot and cold" on the subject and conceded that there was merit to both sides of the question.

Councilman Ralph Doetsch suggested that perhaps the city should try the residential requirement to see how it worked and, if it proved unsatisfactory, the Council could then revert to the original policy.

And that was the motion that was made and passed by a 4-1 margin.

No action was taken on the question of limiting service on the commission to eight years. Almost all the councilmen agreed that such a limitation was unnecessary, so there was no policy change on that.

People who raise dogs for shows are usually referred to as "breeders." Most of them spend considerable time, money and energy on that sport.

There are several other categories of breeders. One is called a "backyard" breeder. This usually means that the family dog is mated, probably just once and just as often as not, to the dog down the block who is 1) the same breed 2) has papers and 3) a willing owner who'll take a puppy for the use of his dog.

Neither owner usually knows anything about "breed standards" or genetics and probably could care less.

A large number of the puppies registered today are from such matings, and since the average American family is concerned about good health and good care, even though the puppies may not have the ideal qualities for shows, they are clean and warm and have human contact and love.

The third kind of breeder is hard to imagine. He is called a "puppy mill breeder", and if legislation pending in several states is passed, he'll shortly be the only kind of breeder around.

Puppy mills have been a blight on the dog world for years, but their market has been limited.

Now legislation is being introduced in a number of states which would prohibit the sale of puppies by anyone other than one who derives his principal business or income from such sales. This completely eliminates the backyard breeder and makes it nearly impossible for the show-minded breeder (who is lucky to break even on his dog sales), to compete.

The average person probably will react by saying that he considers there are too many dogs in the world and if only those concerned with making money can breed dogs, maybe there won't be so many unwanted pets.

What he doesn't recognize is that in order to make money a lot of corners have to be cut. Number one is care. The labor market is expensive and the puppy mill operator can seldom afford adequate help.

Therefore, bitches whelp unattended, runs go dirty, feeding time for puppies are spasmodic and little or no money is available for veterinary care, vitamins or other necessities.

The object is to breed and whelp a bitch, wean the pups, market them and breed the bitch again. No time is allotted for human contact, the basic "must" of dedicated breeders.

No hernias are treated, no ears are taped, no worm problems are diagnosed.

Letters to the Editor

GARBAGE CANS

Dear Editor:

We are taking this opportunity to express our opinion on an outstanding problem, to our way of thinking, in the Campbell area. At the same time, here is something toward a solution of this problem, which is, the lack of containers for disposing of small items of rubbish such as paper handkerchiefs, etc. In other words, outside of a few in Campbell Park and one by the drinking fountain next to the railroad tracks, where are the trash cans in Campbell?

Apparently this would be a problem to hand to the city engineers, but they say "no", the funds for trash cans have been exhausted already.

At this point we shall offer our plan for aiding the trash problem of Campbell, which is mainly to donate free of charge at least one and perhaps two or more cans to the city, provided that arrangements be made for the regular pick-up of the accumulating trash.

Thank you.

MAKES TOPPER CLUB—John C. Vierhus, with offices at 2270 S. Bascom Ave., Campbell, will again be guest of Farmers Insurance Group (Sept. 23-26) at the company's Topper Club convention, according to R.G. Lindsley, vice president.

Topper Club honors are awarded annually by Farmers Insurance Group to its leading district managers and agents and Vierhus has been accorded the honor 10 times during the past 12 years he has operated his office in Campbell.

ON CAPITOL HILL

with "Charlie" Gubser

California's economic future is largely dependent upon the outcome of the current debate of national trade policy.

Damaging foreign competition to the textile and shoe industries of the eastern seaboard has unleashed the combined political power of the affected areas into a serious wave of protectionism. If this spirit prevails it will, in my opinion, be a serious detriment to our local economy.

In the last decade U.S. business with overseas customers more than doubled and a major share of the increase went to Santa Clara County. For example, Japan has now become the first $1 billion-a-year customer for U.S. farm products including those produced locally.

This market would certainly be slashed by Japanese retaliatory action if a surge of protectionism in Congress imposed import quotas on Japanese textiles.

Last year the United States exported $1.6 billion more than it imported and this year the surplus will be $2.7 billion. But if Congress were to succumb to those who would subvert the economic interest of the nation to the benefit of isolated specific businesses, the national economy would probably lose more than it could gain.

Admittedly the trade policy of other nations has discriminated against U.S. industry on occasions. For example, Japan will not allow the importation of U.S.-made computers even though we have no such restriction against her product. The Japanese government works hand-in-glove with businessmen to capture foreign markets.

Together they meticulously prepare for a negotiation and sit down at the bargaining table with a common purpose. The Sharp Company in Japan is a good example of their success. Five years ago it had yet to make its first calculator; but with government subsidy, cooperation, and smart international negotiation this company now controls 35% of the world calculator market.

In my opinion, the answer to discrimination against U.S. products in foreign markets is not the "eye for an eye" approach of protectionism which only aggravates the situation. The real answer lies in improving the quality of both negotiators and negotiations.

Today American business is treated as an outsider when our poorly prepared people sit down with foreign nations. Clearly they are no match for the combined government and industrial teams which face them across the negotiating table. Thus, it is not an inadequacy of the tariff law which is causing our problem. Instead it is inadequate administration.

One major Santa Clara company is now dependent upon foreign customers for 40% of its sales as compared to a 10% figure just five years ago. Dozens of firms have learned that with cutbacks in purchases for aerospace and defense items, the void must be filled by overseas sales.

This cannot happen until our trade negotiating techniques are brought out of the ice age and into the 20th century.

I shall oppose unreasonable protectionist legislation and work instead for improving the quality of our representation at international bargaining tables.

PIONEER COUNCIL

Troop 301, Boy Scouts of America, led by Victor Botts, scoutmaster, will start a conservation orientated project of trail building at Big Basin Park in the Santa Cruz Mountains, on Sept. 26.

This troop will be the first of many to take advantage of a district-wide program set up by Pioneer District Conservation Chairman Nick Nichols and Dick Rizzo, assistant chairman.

Troop 301 Scouts will receive expert instruction on trail-building techniques, tools, and objectives while actually restoring and building trails in this heavily visited and popular park. In addition to performing this public service, scouts and leaders will be treated to campfire talks by high school and college level life science instructors.

Topics will include conservation, ecology, air and water anti-pollution techniques and man's relationship to his natural environment.

Additional troops soon will engage in clean-up outings along the shores of Lexington Reservoir, south of Los Gatos.

Nichols and his committee hope to involve all scouting groups in the Pioneer District in these instructional and public service projects.

In general, the district encompasses Moreland, Campbell, Cambrian and Union Elementary School District.

Pedestrians hit by swerving car

Two pedestrians suffered minor injuries after a car apparently swerving to avoid a collision with another vehicle crossed a street onto the shoulder, according to Campbell Police Department.

Denise Ann Brown, 3176 Cadillac and James Herd, Jr., 496 E. Central Ave. were knocked down by a vehicle driven by Dean Thomas Webster, 109 S. Second St. about 7:30 Monday night.

The accident occurred near the intersection of Dillon and Central Aves.

Witnesses reported to Campbell Police Department that a vehicle approached Webster's southbound car from the south and crossed Central Ave. in the wrong lane, causing it to swerve across the roadway, into three pedestrians, Fredda Kirby, mother of James Herd, was reported uninjured.

Two pet hospitals were reported entered in the past week. Carl E. Jacobsen of Cambrian Animal Hospital, 130 Curtner, reported that his building was entered and about $60 in currency was taken.

Eugene Carroll, of Valley Large Animal Hospital, 971 E. Hamilton Ave., lost tires, hand tools and horse tack valued at nearly $400. Entry was made through a rear entrance.

The police department also reported that complaints from car owners about their vehicles being towed away by private companies have been taken. Although the police department's telephone number is printed on signs in private parking lots, it is not the police department who is doing the towing, but rather, private companies contracted by the individual merchants.

PETER RAUSCH

Peter Rausch competes in Hawaiian tournament

When you're only ten years old and in the fifth grade, a trip to Hawaii to compete in a tournament is pretty special.

But if you are Peter Rausch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rausch, 773 Kenneth, and you've studied judo for a year and a half and were second place champion in the National Judo Championships, maybe you deserved it.

Young Rausch, a student at Hazelwood School, competed in the national tournament held at University of San Francisco in July. In his age and weight group there were 50 boys. Peter won every match in which he competed and was runner-up to last year's champion.

On August 1, Peter and his mother and several other youngsters went to Hawaii. Here Peter won another second place trophy, but naturally the trip was the thing he'll be telling his schoolmates about.

And where next year, Peter? Japan?

Ungraded school seeks help for park

Two young men have been spending a great deal of time and effort to entertain the young people of their neighborhood.

"Richard" and "Lou" are companions, buddies, pals and in general have been fix-up men to a bevy of youngsters who latched onto them this summer, to the extent that the "gang" is getting down to some serious activities. (Included in the "fixing" are cuts and bruises, most easily dealt with by a kiss-and-make-it-well.)

Children who live in the area of Bascom Avenue bounded on the north by Casey Road spend many happy hours fixing bikes, cleaning up debris, holding "school" and "church" in an abandoned bus and planting gardens.

The "garden" is what the young people currently want most and they have their eye on a vacant lot which they visualize might be turned into a park.

Also on their schedule is a proposed long bike ride (in which the youngest can't plan to participate) on Easter Sunday, using frontage roads along which flower seeds will be dropped.

Currently, ecology is the topic and the small fry are collecting and smashing tin cans which will be turned into cash for their proposed park purchase or rental (if they can find out where to take the cans, and who owns the land they want).

All the youngsters are confirmed bike riders, in accordance with Richard's ideas regarding the pollution of the air.

Lou and Richard have also discovered that the attention they are giving the youngsters is paying off in other respects. Neighbors who previously complained that a lot of rock-throwing and fighting persisted amongst the neighborhood, now compliment the duo on the attitude of the kids.

Many of the activities turn into day-long affairs, so the youngsters have also gotten into the habit of bringing a lunch to share with each other.

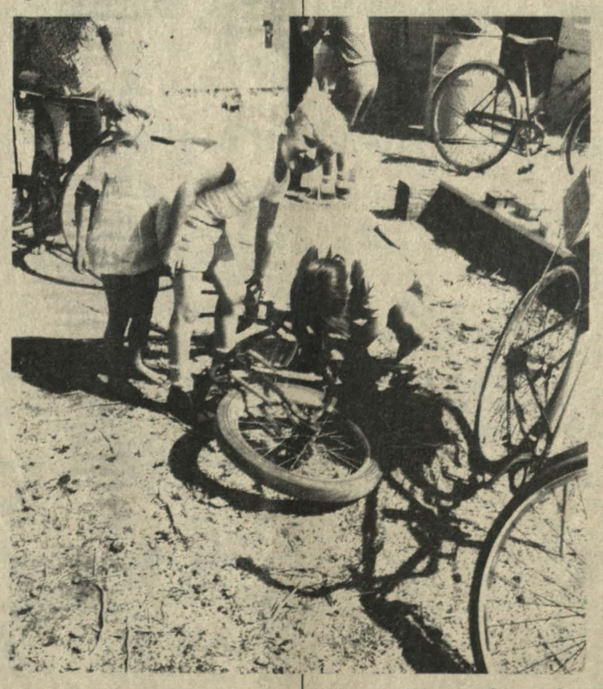
As many as 25-30 youngsters, some of them teen-agers, have gotten involved with the activities, which included a clean-up of a local store parking area, and the addition of some flowers to a planting strip.

Currently two topics are uppermost in their minds. How to get the land for their park and where to deposit their tin cans.

Persons interested in helping them may call 371-2111.

HIGH HOPES---This is the lot which two young men who have "adopted" the children of their neighborhood hope can be made available for a park.

CAN SMASHERS --- Everybody wants a chance at smashing the tin cans collected by neighborhood children. The kids hope to turn the cans into money for a park near Bascom Avenue.



BIKE FIXERS---One of the "talents" taught neighborhood youngsters this summer was the repair and care of bikes, which even found favor with the little girls. The kids were guided in their work by Richard and Lou, two young men of the neighborhood.
